

Back to School Toolkit

Engaging K-12 Schools

Published August 23, 2022

About this Toolkit

As students head back to school, making sure they are healthy and ready to learn is top of mind. We want to be sure health is top of mind for their parents and caregivers too. Now that more Missouri adults are eligible for health insurance through Medicaid, we encourage you to use back-to-school opportunities to engage entire families about their health insurance options. Keep in mind that some staff adjacent to schools and childcare settings may also be eligible and would benefit from learning more about Medicaid too. The resources in this toolkit are meant to be shared with trusted messengers among students and their families and staff members in schools, offices, and other locations to raise awareness of Medicaid expansion.

Use this toolkit to engage:

- School district and building leadership, administration, and staff
- School nurses and other health care workers
- School and recreational youth sports leagues and coaches
- Community organizations serving students and their families
- After-school programs
- Childcare centers
- Teachers and organizations representing educators

*All income references in the toolkit are based on the 2022 federal poverty level.
